THE TALK ABOUT TOWN

Zeeland Cabinet Maker Expanding

ZEELAND — They must be doing something right at Woodways Inc.

Or maybe the Michigan economy is improving.

Or maybe it's a combination of both.

The 17-year-old cabinet manufacturing company, which has relied on home construction and remodeling for about 75 percent of its business, is expanding despite the serious slump in new home construction.

Tim Waterway, founder and co-owner of Woodways, said Lamar Construction of Hudsonville is building an 11,000-square-foot addition to the plant, located south of Zeeland off Adams Street. Waterway said the addition is scheduled for completion by the end of June but is ahead of schedule.

When finished, the addition will "about triple our manufacturing space," he said. He anticipates increasing the current work force of 10 people to about 15 within the next 12 months. The expansion will also increase the size of the plant's showroom.

Waterway, who manages the plant, owns the business with Volker and Suzanne Rudnitzki.

"We have seen a decline in new construction in the residential" category, said Waterway, and he conceded that the last few years have been "difficult." But he said Woodways is busy now despite the weak Michigan economy and the drop in new home construction, because the company is versatile in a number of ways, and has its own niche.

"I can highly recommend Woodways. From first contact to final detail, I was impressed. The cabinets are of high quality. So many choices and expert advice. I had a vision for my kitchen and Woodways totally delivered. I am very pleased with the end result. The whole project went very well and within my timeline. All the staff, from designers to installers were competent and professional and easy to work with. I will enjoy my new kitchen for many years to come."
